Now the head of Britain's top anti-vaccination committee, Dr. Martin Byer, says he now "regrets" - or at least considers what he called "the pessimistic press" - Ascertaining that there had been five cases of poliomyelitis notified month and they were said to have been due death, Dr. Byer said, "We should be more alarmed ourselves about the outbreaks which have been reported." This was the first time the spokesman, from Great Britain's Society for Medical Research, had been quoted since his organization last year urged the public to give up vaccination.

Now Dr. Byer speaks out

DOES who hundreds of Indians had tested for polio antibodies yesterday. Rochester's Director of Medical Services, Dr. Robert Byer, gave his first "statement" — an interview concerning what he called "the poliomyelitis panic". Admitting that there had been five tests of poliomyelitis patients last month and that there had been one death, Dr. Byer said "We thought our park or alarm conditions over the incidents which have been reported."

This was the first positive statement about those 15 isolated cases that were never, had been reported, made by Rochester public authorities since the first 10 were reported last month.

Edwards speaks out on vaccines

By Mark S. Miller
Special to The Star

LOS ANGELES — Dr. James L. Edwards, a pediatrician who has been called a "vaccine hero" by the National Vaccine Information Center, says he has been threatened with legal action if he continues to speak out against the polio vaccine.

Edwards, 52, of Glendale, says he has received threatening letters from the National Vaccine Information Center, which is based in Washington, D.C., and from the American Academy of Pediatrics, which is based in Chicago.

The letters, which were sent to Edwards' office, threaten legal action if he continues to speak out against the polio vaccine, Edwards says.

Edwards, who has been a pediatrician for 25 years, says he has been threatened with legal action if he continues to speak out against the polio vaccine.

The new Workmen's Compensation Act, which became effective January 1, 1924, has been described as "the most far-reaching legislation ever passed by the Legislature." It is the result of the efforts of the Legislature to provide for the protection of workers in case of injury or death resulting from their employment.

On the other hand, a number of provisions can be seen more designed than protective. The fact of the matter is that the legislation is not so much concerned with the safety of the workers as it is with the workers' compensation. This is evident because the clause of the act referred to as "protective provisions" has a title which is given as follows:

"The provisions have reference to workers' compensation, which is one of the principal features of the new law, and not to the safety of the workers."

A close adherence to the language of the new law is being made by all elements of society to ensure its effectiveness. It requires a duty on the part of the State to make available to the community the services of a professional body, namely, the medical profession, and to establish and administer such services.

It is the opinion of the author that the new law will be of great benefit to the workers, and will help to reduce the number of accidents.

The new law provides for the protection of workers in case of injury or death resulting from their employment. It also provides for the protection of workers in case of disease or disability resulting from their employment.

the first time I had a chance of seeing them, you'll never guess what I found. They were all dead. The reason was that they had been left in the sun too long. This is a common mistake among people who are new to the country. They don't know that the sun is very strong here, and it can easily kill plants if they are left in it for too long.

In other publications by the Department of Defense there is being developed a strategy for defense in a hemisphere. The strategy is based on maintaining the United States military and economic strength to the maximum and making it a predominant military power.

It is important to provide the patient with a clear explanation of the procedure and the potential risks involved.

Mosquito 'control' isn't all

THE Barbados Government is pushing an incentive drive to eradicate the Aedes Aegypti mosquito, the vector of Zika virus. With this and its work eliminating the Aedes vexans mosquito, the number of reported cases has dropped from 10 to six since July 10. The Government considers that this achievement will make蚊子 eradication a reality.

The Government has been doing this work in partnership with the World Health Organization, the Ministry of Health, and the Barbados Mosquito Control Board. The Board has been working closely with the Ministry of Health to identify areas where the mosquito is breeding and to eliminate these areas.

It is not difficult to appreciate what蚊子 control should be a priority. This is because the mosquito is a vector of many diseases, including dengue fever, chikungunya, zika virus, and yellow fever. These diseases can cause serious health problems, including death. Therefore, it is important to take steps to prevent the spread of these diseases.

However, it is also important to note that蚊子 control should not be the only focus. It is also important to address other factors that contribute to the spread of these diseases, such as poverty, lack of access to healthcare, and lack of education. These factors can contribute to the spread of these diseases, and they must be addressed in order to effectively combat them.
